Latest Developments

Members of ISIS in south Damascus have stolen the houses of the people who were displaced during the past few days, from Yarmouk camp to the neighboring towns, as a result of the latest wave of bombardments.

ISIS had prevented the residents from taking any of their furniture or personal belongings from Yarmouk camp to the towns, only allowing them to carry a bag of clothes and winter blanket.

This comes in conjunction with the armed Syrian opposition groups' complete closure of the Orouba checkpoint with dirt mounds, which was the last port connecting between Yarmouk camp and its neighboring towns..

Thousands of Palestinian refugees fled from Yarmouk camp to the neighboring towns, after the Syrian regime forces' bombardments and ISIS's control over the camp, living a life of misery and great suffering.

In the meantime, the Syrian security forces released the Palestinian refugee Nanny, "Asmaa Azzam," after her arrest on the 18th of February on her way back from Lebanon, for unknown reasons. She had gone to Lebanon for a “Reunion” interview in the German Embassy in Beirut. She is from Neirab camp for Palestinian refugees in Aleppo.

So far, the Action group has recorded the detention of 1773 Palestinians in the Syrian regime’s prisons, including more than 106 women.

In another context, the Palestinians in Syria Relief and Development Association in the town of Muzayrib, in coordination with the Sham Association for Orphans Care, distributed sponsorships to 14 orphans for three months, providing $135 for each orphan.

"The Structure of Humanity" Association also distributed sponsorships to the children of Muzayrib’s martyrs within the "Orphan Sponsorship" campaign. A sum of $50 were distributed to 66 orphans.

On its Facebook page, the Association said that the campaign was the product of the people of the town of Muzayrib, and that it included all the children of Muzayrib’s martyrs who had not been sponsored by any party before.

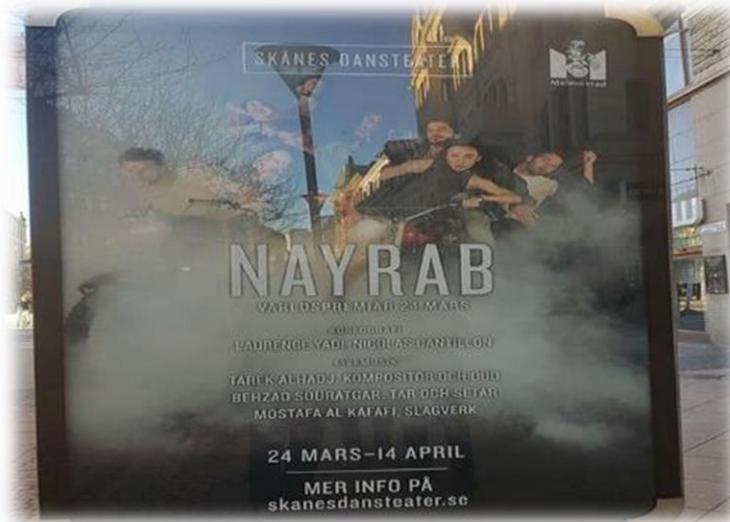

The Palestinian refugees in south Syria suffer from extremely bad living conditions, due to the violent and repetitive bombardments targeting the area. This has caused major destruction to the infrastructure, in addition to water and electricity cuts and the halt of medical services.

In the Diaspora, the Skane Dance Fair, hosted in the Swedish city of Malmo, will show a musical play titled “Neirab camp,” led by the resident of the camp, Maestro Tarek Al-Haj on the 24th of March.

According to Al-Haj, this play portrays the convergence of cultures between authentic Arabic music, adding that he developed a number of Arabic songs and musical pieces to match the dance show, with the choreographers Laurence Yadis and Nicolas Cantillons, on the dance style FuittFuitt. Nine international dancers perform the dance on the Arabic music tunes.

Skane Dance Theater occupies a distinguished position as one of the most important creators of modern theater dance in the Scandinavian countries. It was established in 1995, in the province of Skane, by leading artists.

In the Netherlands, Palestinian-Syrian refugee “Bassel Al-Khayal” won second place in the “Physique” competition, which was held in the Netherlands.

The position Al-Khayal achieved is considered very important to his sports career, and will add to his self-confidence, to encourage him to continue his training and win first place in the next Physical competition in the Netherlands. Al-Khayal was displaced to the Netherlands from the Sham Road neighborhood, located opposite to Al-Aedin camp in Homs.

A number of Palestinians who fled to the Netherlands from the refugee camps in Syria, achieved great success, including Palestinian refugee “Bahaa Al-Tawba” from Al-Aedin camp in Homs, who came third in the Isala Cup competition in the Netherlands, for carrying 9 kilograms. Bahaa also came third place in his first Open Bodybuilding Championship in Holland, which was held on 27-03-2017, in Capelle Aan Den Ijssel in the city of Rotterdam.
