Latest Developments

247 Palestinian residents of Khan Eshieh Camp, in Syria's Rif Dimashq, among them women and children, have been secretly held in Syrian jails.

The detainees' fates and whereabouts have been shrouded in mystery.

AGPS documented the death of 556 Palestinian refugees under torture in state-run prisons in Syria.

AGPS urges the Syrian authorities to reveal the fate of Palestinian detainees held in its penitentiaries.

Meanwhile, Palestinian activists south of Damascus said the municipal council of Yalda, Babilla, and Beit Sahem announced its intent to force displaced civilians, among them hundreds of Palestinian refugees, from abandoned homes due to the absence of official leases.

A Palestinian family displaced from Yarmouk Camp said Yalda municipality ordered them to leave a house into which they have been taking shelter until an official lease is struck to that end. The family said the house-owners live outside of the Syrian territories.

Dozens of Palestinian families fled Yarmouk Camp due to the tough blockade imposed by the Syrian government forces and the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine – General Command and also as a result of ISIS capture of large areas of the camp on April 1, 2015. Dozens more have sought refuge outside of the camp following a deadly military offensive launched by the Syrian government on April 21.

In the meantime, dozens of residents who returned to the AlAyedeen Camp in Hama rallied on September 17 outside UNRWA's local clinic to protest a US decision to cut aids to the refugee agency.

The rally-goers said the US crackdowns against UNRWA amount to a political and economic war waged by the US administration against the Palestinian people in an attempt to infringe their rights, most notably their right to return to their motherland—Palestine—as decreed by UN Resolution 194.

The residents railed against the schemes of forced deportation and ethnic cleaning perpetrated against the Palestinian people.

They said UNRWA is a legitimate body whose founding was green-lighted by the UN in 1949, and, thus, neither the US nor any other party is entitled to dismantle it or abruptly suspend its operations.

Along the same line, an exhibition was launched by UNRWA and the EU in Beirut for Palestinian students from Syria in Lebanon.

UNRWA's Regional Director-General in Lebanon Claudio Kordoni, The European Union's new ambassador to Lebanon, Christina Lassen, were in attendance.

Exclusive snapshots were put on display by ten Palestinian students from Syria after they were nominated at a workshop moderated by international trainers.
