Victims

The Action Group has documented the death of Palestinian refugee “Ahmed Mohammed Barnawy,” due to torture in the Syrian regime prisons, after a detention period of almost two years and a half. He was a resident of Yarmouk camp for Palestinian refugees in Damascus.

The Action Group’s Monitoring and Documentation Team has announced that the total number of Palestinian victims who have died due to torture in the Syrian regime prisons, has reached 482 victims, while the real numbers are expected to be much higher because of the Syrian regime’s secrecy in revealing the fate of over 1680 Palestinian detainees.

Latest Developments

The families of Deir Balout camp and activists in north Syria called out for help in securing infant milk, because the displaced are unable to buy it as a result of the poor financial conditions experienced by the displaced refugees in the camp.

In addition, the price of infant milk has increased. One box of milk costs about 3000 Syrian pounds (6 US Dollars), and only lasts for a week.

The activists stressed on the need to provide infant milk continuously, noting that the children in the camp need 150 boxes per week and that the terrible conditions of the displaced prevent them from buying many of their necessities.

Activists from the camp published a picture of a child whose mother was feeding him water and dates because of her inability to buy milk. As a result, the child encountered an infection in his stomach and intestines, which led to his dehydration.

The Palestinian refugees who left the south of Damascus in batches and arrived at the Deir Balout refugee camp in Jindiris, south-west of Afrin, in the northern suburbs of Aleppo, north of Syria, faced a new chapter of suffering, since the camp lacks many basic services.

In another context, the Syrian regime army's tanks renewed their bombardment of Deraa camp for Palestinian refugees and the areas surrounding it, causing material damage to the houses of the camp. This comes amid fears of escalating military actions by the regime against the armed Syrian opposition in the south of Syria, as news leaks about the intention of the Syrian regime to launch an imminent military action.

In Sabinah camp for Palestinian refugees in the suburbs of Damascus, the technical committees continue to remove the rubble and destroyed buildings, as the Military Construction Corporation works to remove and transfer the destroyed buildings and rubble in the camp on a daily basis.

On the other hand, the specialised committees in Sabinah announced that the citizens living in Al-Sabina Al-Soghra, will be moved from the western Abu Arif Street to the Assaly Road in the east, reaching the schools of the suburbs, and from the main street reaching the street of the municipality for displaced persons and the clinic, pointing to the need to take the necessary identification documents to register the entry of the people.

In 2013, Sabinah camp witnessed violent clashes and was subjected to heavy bombardments by the Syrian regime forces, which led to the total and partial damage of 80% of its buildings, before the regime took complete control of it on 17-11-2013. A few of its residents were allowed to return to the camp on 30 August 2017.
