Latest Developments

The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights stated that: “The agreement, which will bring out the fighters of Faylaq al-Rahman and Hayat Tahrir Al-Sham and their families and rejecters of the agreement of civilians, states in one of its undeclared items, the transfer of the fighters of Hayat Tahrir Al-Sham and their families from the areas of their control in Yarmouk camp, Damascus, to the north of Syria with the outlaws, within this agreement in the eastern Ghouta.”

The Observatory added that the evacuation of the members of Hayat Tahrir Al-Sham is expected, which are approximately 100 fighters in Yarmouk camp, in conjunction with the evacuation of the fighters and their families and civilians from the cities of Arabin, Zamalka and the district of Jobar in Damascus.

In the same context, Faylaq al-Rahman, one of the armed opposition factions in the eastern Ghouta, in the suburbs of Damascus, released the Palestinian refugee “Ahmed Dawood,” in an agreement with the Syrian regime to release 35 detainees.

In a video broadcast on a Syrian news channel, Dawood said that he was kidnapped from the city of Zamalka in the suburbs of Damascus. He is a member of the Civil Forces of the 4th Division of the Syrian Army.

On their part, Palestinian activists and popular events organized a sit-in on Sunday 25-03-2018, in front of Al-Quds school in south Damascus, titled "Bikafi Khaya," to demand their return to Palestine.

The protesters expressed their discontent about what they described as a conspiracy and deception by the humanitarian organizations and Palestinian factions, regarding the support of the Palestinian people in Yarmouk camp and beyond it, and the other refugee camps.

Hundreds of Palestinian families in south Damascus and Yarmouk camp are suffering from cruel living conditions, as a result of their displacement from the camps and the lack of financial resources, in addition to the widespread of unemployment among them, the violations practiced by ISIS against the residents of Yarmouk camp and the closure of the only port linking between the camp and the neighboring town of Yelda.

In another context, an Officer in the Palestinian Liberation Army, Colonel “Aly Shabaan” killed his wife ‘Ikhlas Sawan,’ her brothers Marawan and Mohammed Sawan and her cousin Salah Sawan, while the mother of his wife remains in a hospital in Damascus, in a critical condition.

Media sources loyal to the regime revealed that the crime occurred in the Sawan alley in the “Rokn Al-Din,” following personal differences between Officer Aly Shaaban and his wife ‘Ikhlas Sawan. After the murder, Aly returned to his house, before handing himself in to the police.
