Raising the number of victims of torture who were killed in the Syrian prisons and detention camps and who were documented by the Action Group for Palestinians of Syria to (503) refugees who died while being detained in the Syrian regime's prisons, where the detainees suffer from severe torture, the lack of health care and detention in inhumane conditions in the detention facilities, under strict secrecy by the security forces regarding their fates.

Latest Developments

Thousands of Palestinians and Syrians in Deraa are suffering from extremely bad living conditions, after being forcibly displaced from their homes because of the military operations launched by the Syrian regime forces against the armed Syrian opposition groups in south Syria. Deraa camp for Palestinian refugees and its neighboring areas were also subjected to continued bombardments, with explosive barrels and artillery rockets and shells.

While the families are living on the streets without any urgent relief services, such as tents, food, sanitation, water and basic services, where the south of Syria suffers from a severe shortage of basic services that doubled since the start of military operations launched by the regime on the neighborhoods of the city of Deraa.

This comes in light of the closure of Jordan for all its crossings with the Syrian opposition, announcing on the tongues of its authorities that Jordan will not allow the entry of anymore refugees from Syria, despite dozens of humanitarian appeals made by the civilians in Deraa.

Meanwhile, Palestinian activists reported the news of local sources, that an unknown armed group kidnapped Palestinian refugee "Ayham Eqab," a resident of the town of Sidon in the western suburbs of Deraa, on the evening of Sunday 24th of June. He was taken to the village of Karim in the area of Lajat, and to this moment the reason for his kidnap remains unknown.

According to the Action Group's correspondent, kidnappings have recently increased for various reasons, most notably a ransom demand, while a state of security and armed chaos takes over the south of Syria.

Meanwhile, Palestinian refugee "Mohammed Saif al-Din," a military ambulance officer in Liwaa Al-Quds, one of the factions loyal to the Syrian regime, was injured in the battles in the south of Syria between the regime and the Syrian opposition forces. He is a resident of Neirab camp for Palestinian refugees in Aleppo.

In another context, the Palestinian-Syrian students achieved significant success, in the results of the general secondary school examinations in Syria, despite the difficult and unstable conditions they experienced during the war in Syria and their reflection on them, in terms of displacement from their homes and the dire economic and living conditions they experienced.

Palestinian-Syrian student “Zahra Awdah,” achieved a total of 239.3 marks out of 240, while “Lina Jamal Hemed,” received 239 out of 240 marks, thus achieving the first rank in the secondary school examinations at the level of the Syrian Arab Republic.

While the student “Ayah Mahawash” received a total of 256.5 out of 290 marks. “Mohammed Nour Fawaz Ismaeil,” achieved a total score of 234.8 out of 240 marks, and “Zahra Arafat Halawa” got a score of 234 out of 240 marks.

Dozens of Palestinian-Syrian students have achieved high marks in the results of the basic education exams that were issued a few days ago.
