Latest Developments

Daraa governor said, following a field visit he paid a couple of days earlier, that Daraa Camp for Palestinian refugees will be included in a new plan devised by the Syrian authorities to rehabilitate recaptured zones.

The governor said that all shelters in Daraa will be shut and the residents will gain a safe access to their reconstructed towns.

He added that another quarter will be built at the ruins of Daraa Camp, 80% of whose buildings have been reduced to rubble in the bloody warfare.

The governor also said the local authorities do not intend to evacuate the camp for the time being. However, instructions given by the Syrian authorities green-lighted the return of all residents to Daraa, except those taking shelter in the camp.

A mass exodus from Daraa Camp occurred as a result of the deadly shelling rocking the area. Government onslaughts on the camp using missiles and explosive barrels led to the destruction of 80% of civilian buildings and facilities.

Daraa residents appealed to the Palestinian Authority, the Palestine Liberation Organization, and UNRWA to make serious steps so as to urge the Syrian government to secure their safe return to their homes and refugee camp.

Meanwhile, dozens of displaced Palestinian families in Thailand have called on the United Nations to take action over the threats of refoulement they have been facing after they overstayed their visas.

The refugees appealed for serious measures to work out their legal status, release those detained at Thai detention center, halt arbitrary arrests, and secure their physical and moral protection.

The stranded refugees appealed to the UN to smooth the access of holders of UN cards to safe destinations, where their children's rights to education, health care, and psychological support are met.

The refugees lashed out at the UNHRC in Thailand for failing to live up to its mission in this regard under the pretext that the refugees are not considered by the Thai authorities as asylum-seekers but rather as lawbreakers.

Over 600 Palestinian refugees in Thailand, among them 50 from Syria, have become on the verge of forcible deportation after the Thai authorities rebuffed their appeals for visa-renewal.

In the meantime, deputy Secretary-General of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP) - General Command (GC), Talal Naji, told Sputnik news site that 420 PFLP-GC fighters were killed and 800 others injured since the outburst of the deadly shootouts in Syria.

He added that through the eight-year conflict, PFLP-GC has stood by the Syrian government, which he said has been targeted owing to its pro-Palestine standpoint and nationalistic vision.

According to AlNaji the Arab Spring makes part of a conspiracy seeking to liquidate the Palestinian cause and from which the Israeli occupation has drawn extensive advantage.

At a press conference held in Moscow on October 26, AlNaji said nearly 200,000 Palestinian refugees have fled the Syrian territories since the outbreak of the conflict in 2011, prior to which as many as 500,000 used to take shelter in the country.

Meanwhile, residents of Khan Dannun Camp for Palestinian refugees in Rif Dimashq have set off alarm bells over the acute water crisis which has been ongoing for years, saying civilians have been forced to purchase expensive tank water.

Water supplies are repeatedly cut off across residential neighborhoods in Khan Dannun, where civilians are left with no other choice than to by drinking water from privately-owned tanks at steep prices.

The residents expressed their anger as adjacent neighborhoods inhabited by pro-government officials have been supplied with drinking water nonstop.

The residents continue to call on the government institutions and UNRWA to urgently step in and take serious measures in response to the crisis.

Living conditions in Khan Dannun have sharply deteriorated due to the lack of financial resources and high unemployment rates wrought by the unbridled warfare.
