According to eyewitness' estimates; more than 80% of Sbeineh camp buildings are destroyed, especially, the area from Mouaz Bin Jabal mosque to the main bakery of the camp or Kurds' Bakery, which forms the western entrance of the camp.

Aldiabiyya also, which was inhabited by hundreds of Palestinian families was bombed by the Syrian Regime's forces and robbed as well.

The inhabitants of these places have fled to the nearby towns and camps, this displacement brought them into a new suffering exceeded leaving homes to affect all aspects of their lives, their lives turned into a tragedy because of the economic conditions and widespread unemployment and weak financial resources. Hundreds of them live in schools as evacuation centers where several families could be crammed in one room, this situation pushed many of them to migrate.

In a different topic, the Syrian army targeted, yesterday, the road between Khan Eshieh camp and Zakya town with heavy weapons, during that, activists and some other people via social media warned of crossing that road.

Zakya - Khan Eshieh road considered to be the lifeline of the camp especially after closure of all other roads making it a compulsory passage in spite of the serious potential dangers. The "Death Road" as people of Khan Eshieh nicknamed it, is being targeted by the Regime's forces quite often.

The AGPS has documented death of (141) victims from Khan Eshieh refugees camp.

Moving to Turkey, the Palestinian Syrian refugees who fled the war in Syria to Turkey are suffering from many difficulties and challenges led them into very hard living conditions, these difficulties are represented in the lack of job opportunities and the challenge of learning the Turkish language added to the high competition in job market since hundreds of thousands of displaced refugees are seeking jobs too. Moreover, some employers exploit their refugees' workers for more working hours and low wages in return, while others put prerequisite to obtain residence permit.

Many of displaced families in Turkey live in storages or joint flats or even tents sometimes. A Palestinian refugee says: "the worst house rent could be 150 USD, without counting the bills, which is more than expensive to me".

It is noteworthy that most of the Palestinian Syrian refugees in Turkey are originally from Yarmouk and Handarat and Al-Nayrab and Daraa camps which had been affected by the military strikes. Those refugees managed to reach the Turkish lands through Idlib and Halab Provinces, from which they passed to Hatay and Gaziantep Provinces in Turkey.

*It is noteworthy that Turkey, mostly, is not the final destination for the Palestinian Syrians, but serves as the most prominent transit point to Europe, as it is one of the most important paths from which the refugees ride the sea boats toward Italy and other European countries.
