In the south of Damascus, residents of Ain Ghazal district and areas under the control of Fatah Alsham front - Nusra earlier in the Yarmouk refugee camp, warned from a new siege imposed by ISIS, which will reflect negatively on the already deteriorating living conditions.

They also registered their relatives by force of arms within the records of the Office, which distributes food parcels in the neighboring towns of Yalda, Babbila, and Beit Sahem.

ISIS prevented the besieged people in other areas within the camp of entering food and daily needs, and accused Nusra of what happens in the besieged areas. They also called for people to go to them and ask them to get out in order solving the problem, which provoked the residents who likened ISIS behavior to the actions of the Syrian regime and the affiliated factions such as GC.
