Recent Updates

Hundreds of Palestinian Syrian refugees, who are stranded in Greece, suffer of the very cruel situation after closing all roads between Greece and the European countries in their faces. It is noted that they risk their lives to reach Greece launching from the Turkish Shores. After closing the borders leading to Europe, they were obliged to stay in the temporary refugee shelters in Greece under very bad living situation where they suffer of the unavailability of the basic hygiene and needs. Most of the shelters are temporary houses or tents; moreover, they suffer of the spread of insects and poisonous reptiles such as snakes and scorpions and the absence of the relief services.

It is mentioned that the European Union adopted a strict policy regarding the refugee issue, especially on the Greek border, in addition to the agreement with Turkey to tighten and control the border and prevent immigration boats to sail towards Greece.

On the other hand, the Syrian army stationed at Talet Al Kabouseya targeted the surrounding farms of Khan Al Shieh camp in Damascus suburb with sporadic shelling.

This comes amid a state of anxiety among the residents after repeated targeted in the past few days, as a number of air strikes targeted the camp and resulted in dozens of casualties and victims.

Checkpoints of the regular army continue to close all roads connecting between the camp and the center of the capital, Damascus, which deteriorated medical and living crises inside the camp .

On the other hand, the Italian navy recovered the bodies of 217 people from a ship that sank more than a year ago in the Mediterranean Sea, as it was carrying hundreds of immigrants.

The ship was launched in mid- April 2015 from the Libyan coast, before drawn in the Mediterranean. The ship was carrying about 800 migrants, only 28 of them survived.

According to the Navy's statement, ships of the navy recovered shipwreck from a depth of 370 meters, and transferred it to a place was allocated especially for this purpose near a base of North Atlantic (NATO) in Augusta, Sicily. Sinking of this ship was the worst accident in the Mediterranean for decades.

Civil Work Committees

Jafra" relief organization implemented a number of recreational activities for displaced children in the town of Qudsaya in Damascus suburb. According to the Organization, children carnival was held in the neighborhood of displaced people in the town, while many competitions and recreational activities for children were held at Darwish Hawash School.

It is noteworthy that about 6000 Palestinian Syrian families had been displaced from the Yarmouk refugee camp to the town of Qudsaya, so as to escape the shelling and siege, which targeted their camp.
