Macedonia

the Macedonian police opened fire on a group of Palestinians of Syria while crossing its territory to reach Europe which led to the injury of the child Mohammed Hafez Hassan, who is 13 years old with three shots, where he was transferred to a hospital "mother Teresa" for treatment in the Macedonian capital Sakbaa,. The Macedonian police also arrested a number of Palestinian Syrian refugees, Omar, Ghassan, and Mwafaq Abu Shalla.

Recent Updates

The residents of the Yarmouk camp southern Syrian capital Damascus are still suffer from the continued cut of water for the 40th day respectively, forcing them to retrieve from the areas adjacent to the camp, or stand since the early morning for hours in a queue to get some water from artesian wells in the camp.

On the field, heavy clashes broke out in the Yarmouk refugee camp between members of the (PFLP-GC) and armed groups inside the camp, coincided with the fall of a number of missiles at different places resulted in material damages, which led to the suspension of the distribution of food aid provided by UNRWA for the third day respectively.

In terms of health aspect, one of the medical staff in the Yarmouk refugee camp reported that the camp is at the gates of a humanitarian catastrophe due to the spread of communicable diseases among people as a result of lack of hygiene resulting from the continued cut of water all around the camp. In addition to the acute shortage of medicines, supplies, and medical staff, who led, in the middle of July 2014, to the injury of more than 115 people with typhoid fever as a result of the lack of necessary medicines for the treatment of this disease because of the siege that completed 429 days respectively.

On the other hand, powerful explosions rocked throughout jermana camp in Damascus city as a result of the intensification of clashes between the forces of the Syrian opposition and the Syrian regime in the areas adjacent to the camp, causing a state of panic among the population who complain of overcrowding and lack of basic services and scarcity of food, medicine and fuel.

It is mentioned that Jaramana camp receives thousands of displaced families from the Palestinian refugee camps and areas adjacent to it because of the deteriorating security situation.

In the same context, sounds of explosions and violent clashes were heard across Khan Dannoun camp in Damascus city, due to battles between the opposition forces and the Syrian regular army on the crossing of Al Tiba town adjacent to the camp.

In the meantime, the ongoing events in Handarat camp are still unclear especially after the displacement of its residents because of the continuing suffering of the bombing and the violent clashes between groups of the FSA and the regular army.

On the other hand, the residents of Handarat Camp suffer from difficult humanitarian and economic conditions due to their displacement from their camp to various places in Aleppo and the surrounding areas.

Civil Work Committees

Within the project which was launched last year under the title "I have the right to learn", Palestine Charity Committee distributed school bags to students, schools, alternative schools and crisis schools in the Yarmouk refugee camp, in order to support educational projects in the camp and equipping schools, maintenance and support educational projects and psychosocial support for the children of Yarmouk.
