Latest Developments

Displaced Palestinian families from Syria in Lebanon continue to launch distress signals over the lack of humanitarian aids for months.

In letters emailed to AGPS, Palestinian refugee families said they have been grappling with abject living conditions as a result of the high rates of unemployment, lack of financial resources, and absence of humanitarian assistance.

A refugee said the efforts sporadically made by Palestinian factions in Lebanon do not live up to the tragedy endured by hundreds of displaced families seeking shelter in the Lebanese territories.

The refugee added that humanitarian charities and NGOs have attributed the crisis to the financial crunch rocking their budgets.

Meanwhile, the Independent Human Rights Commission, in partnership with the Follow-Up Committee of Refugees from Syria in Gaza convened a meeting to discuss the situation of Palestinians from Syria in besieged Gaza.

The meeting, held in Khan Younis, sought ways to empower Palestinian Refugees from Syria in Gaza and secure housing and shelter, among other rights, for them.

The meeting culminated in a decision to task the Independent Human Rights Commission with keeping tabs on the affairs of the Palestinians from Syria in Gaza and speak up for them at national and international platforms.

More than 50 years of occupation and 11 years of blockade have made the lives of nearly 2 million Palestinians living inside the Israeli-blockaded Gaza Strip unbearable.

1,000 Palestinians from Syria have returned to the enclave, which has now been referred to as the world's largest open-air prison.

In the meantime, Palestinian refugee Awad Deib Issa, aged 58, has been missing for the third consecutive day.

Issa disappeared from Daraa Camp, south of Syria, on Wednesday, November 21, as he left his home on way to his workplace.

Issa's conditions and whereabouts remain shrouded in mystery. Issa, who works as a cleaner, reportedly suffers from psychological disorders.

More than 300 Palestinians have gone missing in war-torn Syria, according to AGPS data.

At the same time, Palestinian refugee Hasan Ziad Leyla, 26, has been enduring a mysterious fate in Syrian state prisons for the 6th consecutive year.

Hasan was kidnapped by Syrian security forces from AlKastal School in Yarmouk Camp. His condition and whereabouts remain mysterious.
