Latest Developments

The regime forces centered in Deraa, used a number of mortar shells to bombard the neighborhoods of Deraa camp for Palestinian refugees in south Syria, and the Sad Road neighborhood yesterday night, causing destruction to the residents' houses.

More than 80% of Deraa camp's buildings have been completely or partially destroyed, while the remaining residents of the camp and the Sad Road neighborhood are complaining of the harsh humanitarian conditions, resulting from the siege imposed by the regime's army, on the camp and its neighboring areas.

Meanwhile, Street 15 in Yarmouk camp for Palestinian refugees in Damascus, witnessed a sniper attack. According to ISIS's pages, which controls large areas inside the camp, one of its snipers targeted a member of "Hayat Tahrir Al-Sham" - previously known as Al-Nusra - however our correspondent in the camp could not confirm the reports from other sources.

ISIS had taken control over the camp in the beginning of April 2015, with the help and support of "Hayat Tahrir Al-Sham" - previously known as Al-Nusra Front.

In another context, the General Authority for Palestinian Arab Refugees honored a number of excellent, Palestinian-Syrian students in Damascus, who are enrolled in the primary and secondary stages at the Authority's institutes for the academic year 2016-2017.

Thousands of Palestinian-Syrian refugee students have been prevented from their right to education because of the Syrian war. A number of schools in Yarmouk camp, Deraa and Muzayrib have been subjected to bombardments.

In the meantime, the Syrian regime continues to detain dozens of females Palestinian refugees in its prisons, most of which are youth, in addition to families where both the mother and her daughters are taken, such as the "Mawlood Khaled Al-Abdullah" family. Members of the Syrian regime arrested the whole family on 27-07-2013.

Testimonies of the released detainees from the regime's prisons confirm that the Syrian security forces practice all forms and types of torture. "Hoda," a female detainee who has been released told of extremely harsh details, documenting the details of the detention and torture of women in the Syrian regime's prisons.
