Latest Developments

Activists have reported news of the detention of 5 Palestinian refugees living in Azaz camp in the north of Aleppo, which is under the control of the Syrian opposition. The Group did not receive any information about the names or reasons for the arrest.

The sources said that a campaign of arrests took place in the camp a few days ago on the background of the spread of some narcotics and the occurrence of individual problems.

Dozens of refugees from those displaced from Yarmouk camp live inside the camp, after they were deported to the north of Syria under an agreement between the armed Syrian opposition in the south of Damascus and the Syrian regime.

A number of activists in Yarmouk camp and local sources reported that members of the Syrian regime are preventing the families and medical staff from retrieving the bodies of the Palestinian civilian victims from the rubble of their homes. They noted that the medical staff in Yarmouk camp are not authorized to retrieve any bodies of civilians in the camp even if they are accessible, on the pretext of the absence of any family members or officials to adopt the victims to be recovered and buried, and the absence of hospitals accepting to receive the bodies.

Witnesses from the camp's residents who entered to inspect their houses, said that a strong and foul smell was emanating from the basement of UNRWA's Youth Support Center in Al-Madares Street, where there are bodies of a number of civilians. This is also the case at the extension of Street 30, near Palestine Hospital, where the body of an old man is clearly visible to the eyewitness.

For their part, activists called on the PLO to work at the political level to adopt the unidentified bodies, to protect their dignities and the dignity of the people who are supposed to represent them, according to them. They also called on the Palestinian factions loyal to the Syrian regime to use their relations to obtain approvals for the recovery and burial of the victims.

On his part, the Director-General of the General Authority for Arab Palestine Refugees in Syria, Ali Mustafa, stressed to the Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East, Pierre Krähenbühl, that UNRWA should continue to provide cash, food and other assistance to the people of Yarmouk camp on a monthly basis, due to their difficult conditions, calling on the Agency to prepare for the reconstruction of its educational, health and relief facilities, in accordance with the directives of the Syrian government and in coordination with the competent authorities, to be ready to provide services to the Palestinian refugees in the camp.

Al-Ali pointed out at the beginning of his message that the armed groups that controlled the camp had destroyed the camp's infrastructure, demanding n UNRWA to intervene to expose the armed groups that had caused corruption, killing and destruction in the camp, according to him.

In the meantime, the houses and camps of Yarmouk camp are still being subjected to a systematic campaign of looting by members of the regime's army and its loyal Palestinian groups, where the "defamation" activities that target all that can be stolen from the houses and shops continue, in order to be sold later.

According to locals, thefts and looting included furniture of houses, wooden doors, windows, water heaters and sanitary installations. The equipment of shops in the camp were also included. Some members steal, while others sort the stolen items, to be ready for the other members to come and load the goods and sell them to the "defamation" markets.

In a different context, a Palestinian refugee woman was harassed by a staff member of the Immigration and Passport Center in Ein Karsh, Damascus, who initially blocked her travel permit from Syria to Lebanon until she travels to one of the European countries after receiving family unification.

According to relatives of the refugee, the employee insulted the refugee on the pretext that her brothers are members of the Free Syrian Army, and told her that she will not get approval speaking in foul language. After the refugee begged the staff member and completely broke down before the people, a staff member accepted and authorized her to enter Lebanon, where the refugee arrived in Europe a few days ago.

On the other hand, the Palestinian-Syrian child "Ahmed Abu Shanab" (14 years old), from Al-Hajar Al-Aswad and displaced to the Masaken Barza area in Damascus, went missing 11 days ago, during his departure from his home in Masaken Barza on Saturday, 19 May, after Iftar. He was riding a red-colored motorbike, with no news or information about his fate until the moment this report was published.

In Lebanon, a group of Palestinian-Syrians demonstrated with their relatives in the Beddawi camp in the northern city of Tripoli on Tuesday evening, in solidarity with the people of Gaza and in protest of the Israeli occupation's air raids that targeted the Gaza Strip.

The march took off in front of the Sarhan station after the Taraweeh prayers, where they roamed the streets and lanes of the camp, shouting slogans against the "war on the Gaza Strip" and other chants condemning the Arab silence and weakness.

During the demonstration, speakers emphasized the need to take a strong Arab and international stance against the continued violations of the Zionist occupation against the Gaza Strip and its people. They called on the Arab states to stop normalization with this entity. They also called for lifting the siege on the Gaza Strip completely and definitively, and opening the crossings for the entry and exit of individuals and goods to and from it.

The demonstrators called on all the Palestinian camps in the diaspora to support the resistance in Palestine and to continue supporting the demonstrations against the decisions of the Zionist enemy and other tyrannical agreements against the Palestinian resistance. They also called on all the free people of the world to stand up against this Israeli aggression and arrogance, with the support of America.
