Recent Updates

The violent clashes that broke out several days ago in the vicinity of Handarat Camp for Palestinian refugees in Aleppo are still continuing, as the Regular Army and the Syrian armed opposition used all kinds of medium and heavy weapons. It is mentioned that most of the residents have left the camp after the opposition controlled the camp and the following repeated bombing that targeted the houses of the camp.

The residents who left their homes for about 558 days ago are suffering of great difficulties especially with the high cost of living and the unemployment. 204 days without water on Daraa Camp south of Syria, as the suffering of residents is aggravating with the stop of medical services in the camp because of the great destruction of the buildings after the repeated bombing, which were targeted the in recent months. The absence of relief organizations is exacerbate the suffering of the people, forcing hundreds of them to flee to nearby towns and villages to escape from bombing and the problems of living.

At Latakia, the suffering is concentrated on the security and economic sides, where security checkpoints heavily spread in the vicinity of the camp, thus affecting the movement of people, especially those who are in the age of compulsory military service for fear of being arrest. Economically, people are suffering of the prevalence of unemployment, which doubled the economic burdens faced by residents of the camp.

On the other hand, the Lebanese authorities continue to take decisions that will tighten on Palestinian and Syrian refugees from Syria, where some municipalities have taken decisions limiting residents' refugee movement. Some of these decisions prevented roaming after seven o'clock pm, as some others banned the Lebanese landlords to rent their homes for more than a family coming from Syria. It is mentioned that the Lebanese authorities have taken decisions that limit the entry of refugees from Syria to Lebanon.
