Lebanon

Amid the security tension in Lebanon and under unprecedented state of anger between its political parties, Palestinian refugees from Syria to Lebanon are afraid of the negative repercussions of this crises after the Lebanese general security refused to renew their residency. This has made their presence in Lebanon as irregular and that exposes them to be investigated by the security checkpoints which are spreading widely recently. The Lebanese general security attributes its refusal to extend residencies to the absence of decisions which states that.

The Lebanese authorities issued recently a lot of strict conditions about the entry of Palestinian Syrian refugees. The refugees are afraid of being deported to Syria because of the security situation there, in addition that most of the youth are required to apply to military service and will be detained at the border if they were deported.

The Lebanese authorities have previously deported dozens of refugees to Syria after being arrested while they were trying to travel with fake visas through Rafiq Al Hariri airport in Beirut, according to the statement of the Lebanese General Security.

Therefore, many Palestinian Syrian refugees in Lebanon complain of what they described as that the Palestinian factions, UNRWA and the Palestinian embassy do not take serious actions to put an end to their problem.

Mohammed speaks to our correspondent in Lebanon, saying, "The UNRWA, the Palestinian factions and the embassy did not interact with our suffering and did not give us any legal support, they do not move until after the occurrence of the problem. Dozens of young people were deported to Syria while UNRWA, Palestinian factions and Palestine embassy just kept watching them".

Mohammed continues" Where is the PLO? Where are the factions? Where is the UNRWA? All of them were near to us in the time of prosperity and left us in difficult times, we are now without residencies and without a job, and may be deported at any moment".
